

Villa Gabriela

Region of Porto.Vecchio, Corsica, France

Near the village of Pinarello and about twenty minutes from Porto-Vecchio, the Villa Gabriela looks over the foliage of pine trees. At the end of its wild bay, Pinarello is a small fishing port that has the tranquillity of these preserved villages. On the island that faces it, a Genoese tower witnesses to its century-old history.

Bordered by a garden where flowers and aromatic bouquets bloom, the Villa Gabriela has the perfect lines of contemporary architecture. However, on the interior, the furniture that has come from across Europe has the curves of the vintage cult. With an emphasis of decoration from the 1960s: Bouroullec sofas, Opinion Ciatti chairs; big names stand next to each other in harmony. Through large bay windows, the villa beholds the full beauty of the Gulf of Pinarello.

In the garden, the swimming pool emerges from an orange and rocky earth. By a small path that runs through green scrubland, one is led to the Pinarello beach, another protected paradise. Then, through the surrounding mountains, one can discover the villages perched in the inland region of Corsica.
